

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus for monitoring the momentum of a meltspun jet thermal core used for making thermoplastic filaments is presented to aid in the uniformity of formation and elimination of waste in thermoplastic filament nonwoven web formation. The apparatus is easily and economically constructed and is relatively insensitive to positioning variations in the air stream of the filament formation apparatus.